CHARGES AGAINST CHAMBERLAIN.

Parnell being interviewed regarding the matter said he did not intend to pursue the matter further until the commission begins its work. Chamberlain declares that he does not attach the slightest importance to Parnell's statements. As to-night's proceedings in the house indicate, the government is determined to exercise the free use of its privilege of cloture in order to end a debate which is every hour becoming more and more uncomfortable to the ministry. The liberals will make a determined effort to amend the bill and in the event of their failure to do so it is possible Parnell will upset the government's calculation by announcing he would rather take his chances in a trial by jury than to abide by the commission authorized by the bill as it now stands.

London, July 31.—In the Commons last evening Parnell, resuming the debate on the Coercion bill, referred to the proposal of Mr. Reid, made last night, to limit the enquiry to charges of participation or complicy in outrages. He referred to cabinets in office since 1882, proceedings of which he asserted had frequently been divulged by Chamberlain to himself and other nationalist members. The chairman here interrupted, saying that the Irish leader's observations were not now in order. Parnell replied that he would reserve further statements until he appeared before the commission, when he would be prepared to prove his charge. Chamberlain, offering a personal explanation, said that Parnell had made certain vague accusations against him which he threatened to bring before the commission. If the charges were foreign to the subject referred to the commission for investigation, he would give any necessary explanation of them without shirking. Regarding the accusation made by Parnell that he had betrayed Cabinet secrets between 1880 and 1885, as far as he could recollect the only direct communications he had had with Parnell during the whole of that period were first regarding Parnell's release from Kilmainham jail, information of which had occurred having been promptly conveyed to Gladstone and Foster; and second a communication referring to the National Council in Ireland. Parnell recited various acts of Chamberlain which he claimed supported his statements. The chairman interrupted Parnell, ruling that his time for personal explanations in reply to Chamberlain had been exhausted. Chamberlain said he wished to state he did not intend to imply that the subject of national councils was the only matter discussed between himself and Parnell, but he had always informed his colleagues of what had passed between himself and Parnell. He appealed to Gladstone to confirm his statement. Gladstone said he did not question the statement regarding communication between Chamberlain and Parnell while the latter was in jail, but in the present state of his recollections he would require to know what particular communications were referred to before entering into discussion of them. Referring to communications with Parnell in 1885, relating to local government, Mr. Gladstone said his memory accorded with Mr. Chamberlain's.

IMPORTANT DECISION.

The Pan Anglican Conference yesterday reported in favor of recognising the ministry of the non-Episcopal dissenting bodies.

MUSICAL CELEBRITIES.

Two of the most eminent celebrities in the English musical world were quietly married yesterday, and the wedding will excite an unusual amount of interest when generally known. The contracting parties were Sir Charles Halle and Madame Norman-Neruda. For many years past Sir Charles Halle, in addition to being one of the first pianists in England, has been a leading factor in all the musical festivals, mammoth concerts and the like, and a month ago, in consideration of his many public services, was knighted by the Queen. Madame Norman-Neruda is the first lady violinist in the world, and is well known in the great musical centers of Europe. The wedding took place yesterday afternoon in the Cathedral in the presence of two or three friends. It was kept so quiet that no mention appeared of it in the newspapers until this evening.

WANTS SEPARATION.

Belgrade, July 31—King Milan has asked for a consistory to grant him a legal separation from Queen Natalie.

A DESPERATE FIGHT FOR HIS HOME.

Dublin, July 21—The evictions from the Vandeleur estates, in the County Clare, were resumed to-day. Thomas Birmingham, one of the tenants, living at Moyota, made a desperate fight in defence of his home, which created great excitement. Birmingham, his wife and adult daughter, succeeded with the aid of a long pole in keeping off the police and bailiffs from attacking their houses at sufficient distance to shower them with boiling lime, filth, etc., till the attacking party were compelled to retire. A large number of boats filled with people were in the bay opposite Moyota and the cheers of the occupants spurred the tenants to a stronger resistance. Birmingham was finally overpowered and captured.

AMERICAN DISPATCHES.

COMPETING FOR THE TEA TRADE.

Chicago, Aug 1—The Northern Pacific is making an effort to secure a share of the tea traffic from the Pacific to the Atlantic coast, which has of late been monopolized to a great extent by the Canadian Pacific. Yesterday the first shipment of sixteen carloads arrived at Chicago on its way to New York. The tea was received at Portland, Oregon, by the Northern Pacific and transferred to the Burlington and Northern at St. Paul and on its arrival here was taken eastward over the Chicago and Atlantic, which connects with the Erie for New York. The object is to overcome the Canadian Pacific's record in time of transportation from ocean to ocean. The train made remarkably fast time over the initial lines of the route, and it is scheduled to run at about forty miles an hour from Chicago to New York. Much interest attaches to this competition and the result is destined to have an important bearing on the transcontinental traffic. If it is shown that a better and quicker service is given by the new route than by the Canadian Pacific, there is no doubt that much of the business now held for the foreign line will be captured by the Northern Pacific and shipped eastward via Chicago.

TERRIFIC HEAT.

Kansas City, Mo., Aug. 1—Seven deaths have occurred in this city in the past twenty-four hours as a result of the excessive heat. The temperature at ten o'clock this morning was 97°.

REFUNDING THE DEBT.

Washington, July 31—Frye, from the select committee on the Pacific Railways, reported favorably to the Senate to-day the bill to refund the Union Pacific and the Central Branch of the Union Pacific Company's debt. It is identical with the bill which has been unanimously reported by the committee on the Pacific railroads in the House.

THE HOPE ROAD.

Whatcom, July 30.—P. B. Cornwall is still pushing the road toward Fort Hope. The line is permanently located seven miles out, and two hundred men are at work grading and clearing the right of way. Two locomotives and a number of flat cars are expected this week. President Cornwall left here Sunday well pleased with the progress being made. His prospectors have discovered a promising coal vein near the Nooksack river. One of the West Coast engineers has discovered anthracite coal in the Mount Baker foot hills. Specimens may be seen at the Seattle office.

A LAWYER FORGER.

Toledo, Ohio, July 30—Attorney H. P. McKnight of this city while defending a prisoner in the police court this morning, charged with forgery, was himself arrested and locked up on a charge of forging a promissory note for $450.

BREWERY BURNED.

San Jose, Cal., Aug. 1—Doern's brewery in the southeast part of the city was totally destroyed by fire last evening. The fire started in a barn adjoining the brewery. The origin is thought to have been children playing with matches. Loss $7,000, insurance $2,000.

ADVANCED WAGES.

CRUSHED TO DEATH.

Woodland, Cal., Aug. 1—Louis Clark, while driving a steam threshing machine yesterday, slipped and fell under one of the wheels and was crushed to death.

WILL NOT AGREE.

Virginia, Nev., Aug. 1—The case of J. L. Block, the wealthy real estate owner, who murdered his brother Samuel a few months ago, was given to the jury at 9:30 last night. The jury was still out this morning with no prospect of agreeing.

New Alaska Steamers.

A Tacoma dispatch says the Northern Pacific Railroad Company is now negotiating with J. J. Holland, the boat builder, for the construction of two immense steamers for the Alaska and Hawaiian Island trade. It is the purpose to run them between Tacoma and Alaska during the summer, and to Honolulu during the winter.

VICTORIA INDUSTRIES.

The British Columbia Iron Works---Run by a Genuine Son of Vulcan.

The Novelty Iron Works of Thos. Gowan---Another of Our Young Enterprises.

Again to Rock Bay must our readers accompany me and have a glimpse at the

BRITISH COLUMBIAN IRON WORKS,

Mr. J. Robertson, proprietor. We found this mighty knight of Vulcan and father of many Vulcans busily wielding the riveting hammer with a vigor surprising for his years. Informing him of my mission, he gladly raised the veil and laid the mysteries of the art of heavy forging open to our eager gaze. The powerful fan for the blast furnace, propelled by an engine of 6 h. p., although motionless, had its capabilities proudly pointed out by the proprietor, and its powers in heating large, heavy work for welding and other purposes fully dwelt upon. Next came the power hammer, wielding the stroke of a ton, and the boiler plate rollers. There were three fires in full blast, and the "strong and sinewy arms" of the rising Vulcans plyed the anvil chorus with sturdy strokes and blows. The boiler in use was as a specimen of the skill of Mr. Robertson well worthy of boast. The work of the concern is confined entirely to heavy forging and boiler making for marine and stationery engines, and heavy ship work especially. The works are kept busy up to full capacity at the present time. Mr. Robertson is a fine specimen of the sinewy Scottish blacksmith. He was for over nine years foreman blacksmith for the late Mr. Spratt at the Albion Iron Works, and since then has been in business on his own account ably assisted by his sons. The business of the concern is rapidly increasing and hopes for the future are bright. If hard work coupled with a life-long knowledge of the qualities of iron in all its phases is any incentive to success, then ought the British Columbian Iron Works succeed.

On the corner of Store and Herald streets we find the small but well fitted establishment of

THE NOVELTY IRON WORKS,

Mr. Thomas Gowan proprietor. We were kindly received by Mr. Gowan, jr., who informed us that his father was away superintending the erection of some machinery, and volunteered any information we desired. The shop is 35x50 feet, with pattern shop on second flat, the ground floor being used for the fitting shop, &c. An engine 6 h. p., of the "Gowan" make, supplies motive power for the three large lathes and shaper, for turning and fitting iron and brass, an emery wheel, &c. The business of these works being the manufacture and repairing of marine and stationary engines, has in the past received a large amount of public patronage, chiefly owing to the excellence of the work, and the mechanical skill and ingenuity of Mr. Gowan, whose reputation as a machinist is favorably known on this coast. The engines for the following vessels were turned out of these shops: S. Sch. Dolphin, Anna Beck and Thornton, S. S. Barbara Boscowitz, Robert Dunsmuir, Glad Tidings, Rainbow, etc. Mr. Gowan was the first to introduce on this coast the compound cylinders, whereby the consumption of coal was reduced one-half. Business at present is confined to marine work, and is not over plentiful. When in full work over 20 hands are employed. In the brass shops were seen a large supply of crucibles, etc., with furnace, for turning out a large quantity of brass work; at present idle, waiting patiently for a turn in the tide, which will again start the idle machinery and the furnaces will glow again with renewed vigor, lighting up the busy scene of rapidly revolving belts and wheels, now idly dangling from the roof, mournfully gazing as it were, in sorrow on the inanimate scene beneath. Mr. Gowan came from Liverpool, England, and settled in Victoria some ten years ago. Possessing to a degree mechanical skill of his class, ambitious to establish a works in connection with his name, he started the Novelty Works. Competition of large establishments and the loss of patronage of customers identified with the interests of such, has for a time only, it is hoped, caused a cessation of work and enforced idleness. Things however right themselves in the course of time, and the law of supply and demand will rectify monopoly. The whirr of busy industry may be soon heard again from the premises of the Victoria Novelty Works.

The Missing Capt. White.

A Port Townsend dispatch to the Seattle Post-Intelligencer says: Ex-Chief of Police Woolery was in Port Townsend Saturday, and in talking to a friend said: "Do you know that no trace has ever been found of Capt. White, of the Premier, since the hour he was missing? There was a story that he had been heard from, from New York, but there was no truth in it. Neither do I believe the story about his going away with a woman. He was one of the best known men on the Sound, and some one would have seen and recognized him when he was leaving. I'll tell you what I do believe, and that is, he was made away with. He was known to carry a large sum of money about him, had a large amount with him at the time he disappeared, and I believe the theory that he has been murdered and robbed a good one till it is disproved."

[Capt. White has been heard from. A letter was received from him not long ago by a prominent gentleman in this city stating that he had lost the company's money which he had appropriated in gambling, but that he intended to repay it as soon as he could earn it. Chief Woolery probably never gave expression to what is credited to him.]

The Ancon.

The Alaska steamer Ancon left for the north at 12 o'clock last night, having all the passengers and freight that she could carry. Among the passengers were Messrs. Bean and Fuller, the two gentlemen who negotiated the sale of the Bear's Nest and adjacent mining claims to a wealthy syndicate, who go on business connected with the transfer of the property. Mr. Sprague, a New York lawyer and a gentleman deeply interested in educational matters, also boarded the Ancon here. A number of lady and gentlemen teachers, who have been attending the San Francisco convention, are taking in the trip before returning to the east. A large quantity of freight for Cassiar was taken on at the outer wharf.

SPORTING NOTES.

The annual meeting of the B. C. Rifle Association opened this morning at Clover Point in the presence of the Lieut.-Governor, Mrs. Nelson, His Worship the Mayor and a number of other ladies and gentlemen. The first shot was fired by Mrs. Nelson. The attendance of competitors was larger than in previous years, and the meeting promises to be an unusually interesting one. The morning was fine, but toward noon rain came on and firing had to be stopped, but was resumed again this afternoon. The light is fair, and the shooting up to the average. Following is the score:

HORSE RACES SATURDAY.

One of the biggest sporting events of the season is the race to take place at Victoria driving park on Saturday. The race will be a half mile and repeat, but two heats to be won by the horse taking the money. A purse of $150 is to be run for, to which will be added $25 entrance money. Six horses are to be entered, all of which are in the city, with the exception of one, which is to arrive from Nanaimo this evening. The horses in the city are Royal and another from Kamloops, one from Seattle, one from Portland, and Lascelle's mare. All six are flyers, and an unusually good race should take place.

LACROSSE—HAMMER THROWING.

A telegram was received this morning by the Secretary of the Lacrosse Club stating the Vancouver team will arrive here on Sunday evening next, and will play the Victoria Club on Monday afternoon on Beacon Hill.

How are the mighty fallen! The once world-famous champion of champions, John Lawrence Sullivan, of Boston, has descended to the lowest barroom divas, and has taken to drinking the poorest of beer, when he used to demand nothing but the best of wine. Since his drawn battle with Charley Mitchell, he has dropped lower and lower in the estimation of his Boston friends. Because of his protracted sprees, his ungentlemanly conduct and his bravado, little is now thought of the bruiser. It would not be surprising, says a dispatch, to see him arrested for drunkenness any day, and sent to some reformatory for a month to sober up.

The record in distance for throwing a 16-pound hammer was beaten at New York on the 29th of July by Barry, of the Cork Athletic Club. The distance thrown was 122 feet 6¾ inches. The best previous record was also made by Barry about twelve months ago in New York. The distance thrown at that time was 121 feet 11 inches.

THE WELLINGTON SPORTS.

The sports at Wellington on Saturday last were attended by a large number of visitors from this city, Saanich, Nanaimo and the east coast. The sports were keenly contested, but there was no interest in the main horse race owing to no local horse entering for it. The only horses were those from Kamloops, Victoria and Seattle. Following is a list of the sports, with the names of the successfull competitors:

FOOT-RACING.—Boys' race, under 14, D Jones; girls' race, under 14, Rosie Mellado; 100 yards race, 1st H Peck, 2nd H McClusky; 200 yards race, 1st H McClusky, 2nd A Cassel; half mile race, 1st W Steele, 2nd J Stewart and J Martin; one mile race, 1st W Steele, 2nd J Gray; three legged race, 1st A Shaw and H McClusky; hurdle race, 1st H McClusky, 2nd L Jones.

ATROCIOUS MURDER.

A West Coast Indian Choked a Young Boy to Death.

News was recently received from Hesquoit, on the West Coast, of a most atrocious and diabolical murder. The victim was a young Indian lad, and it is believed that the murderer is an old pagan Indian who is a relative of the boy. Some time ago two Indian boys and a small girl were playing in a canoe which upset and the girl was drowned. The girl's death was caused by an accident and nothing more was thought of the matter until a short time afterwards when one of the boys was missing from the Indian village. A search party found his body near the Catholic Church and an examination proved that he was choked to death. The dead boy and drowned girl were cousins; but the Indian relative considered that a life for a life was necessary and choked the child to death. We have been informed that the boy was a bright young fellow and was a most exemplary Christian. His father is in the Behring sea on a sealing schooner and unless the government take steps to arrest the murderer trouble may be expected on the return of the parent. The murderer is well known in the locality and is said to be one of the worst Indians on the west coast.

THE LOAN BY-LAWS.

The result of the voting on the eight loan by-laws submitted to the ratepayers on Tuesday was on the whole satisfactory, and shows that the people are able to discriminate between proper and improper expenditures. Three by-laws received majority votes, viz:

For sewerage purposes	$ 30,000
For water works purposes	20,000
For library (annual charge)	1,200

For sewerage and water works purposes the council have been authorized to borrow the sum of $50,000, and to that extent our city indebtedness will be increased. But the necessity for the contemplated improvements is so obvious, and has been pointed out so frequently by the press, that it would have been surprising indeed had any other verdict been given. For the library no loan is required, the council having simply asked for authority to acquire possession of and maintain at an annual outlay of not more than a $1,200, the valuable collection of books formerly owned by the Mechanic's Institute. The most extraordinary thing about the vote is the fact that 153 intelligent citizens could be found in Victoria who would record their votes against a free or partially free library, especially when the charge upon the city would be so trifling. When a non-progressive spirit is to be found in our midst to that extent, the defeat of the by-law authorizing a loan of $15,000 for fire protection purposes is not surprising. On the whole, however, the ratepayers have acted with a generosity that reflects credit upon the city, and will encourage those who have the welfare and advancement of Victoria at heart to look hopefully to the future. The proposed improvements which have received their quietus for this year at least, are:

For stone retaining wall, James Bay	30,000
For fire department	15,000
For park purposes	13,000
For cemetery purposes	9,000
For additions to City Hall	8,000
	75,000

The total absence of information on these several schemes was a contributing cause to their defeat. Every person admits that the park should be beautified but no person knew how it was proposed to expend the $13,000. A carefully considered plan, embracing details in regard to drives, walks, tree planting, irrigation and arboriculture, would have removed the suspicion that the money, when granted, would be frittered away in costly fences and patchwork improvements; and would have assisted the voters in arriving at an intelligent opinion. The same objections applied to the retaining wall and the city hall—two questions which will continue to occupy the attention of the council and to press for a solution for some years to come.

POLITICAL RUMORS.

The report that Mr. JAMES REID, M. P. for Cariboo in the House of Commons, will be appointed to the vacancy in the Senate caused by the appointment of Hon. Senator NELSON to the Lieutenant Governorship of this province, is gaining credence, and within the charmed circle that is supposed to regulate political affairs in this province is freely stated to be definitely decided upon. We do not know that a better selection could be made; or rather, to speak more accurately, we do not know of a possible candidate who is better qualified to discharge the onerous duties of a Senator than the popular gentleman who now sits in the Commons for the constituency of Cariboo. Hon. JOHN ROBSON was a candidate, but the exigencies of the local political situation have proved too great an obstacle, and he will perforce be compelled to remain and assist his colleagues in retaining power. The strength of Mr. ROBSON lies in his cunning and his great natural accomplishments in the art of dissimulation, without which assistance such disingenuous characters as Mr. DUNSMUIR, who carries his heart on his sleeve, and Mr. TURNER, whose simplicity is his greatest virtue, would be unequal to the task of holding their refractory following together. In the event of Mr. REID accepting the position, Dr. WATT, a gentleman of more than ordinary ability, will become a candidate for the Commons. Mr. McLEESE is also spoken of in the same connection, but he has never publicly signified his intention of "looking to Ottawa." He would be a very strong candidate and would undoubtedly be elected; in that event Dr. WATT would run for the local legislature. Mr. FERGUSON, however, is a factor in the situation that is causing the wire-pullers some trouble, and it is not likely that anything will be done until the position has been thoroughly canvassed, and possibly not until the game has been won before being played.

THE WORLD STARES.

The world-wide interest which attaches to the late meeting of the German and Russian Emperors, says the Week, strikingly shows to how great an extent, even so late in the nineteenth century, the destinies of Europe are in the hands of two or three individuals. What makes the reproach to our vaunted civilization still greater is the fact that these individuals are not chosen by any process of either natural or national selection, but owe their tremendous powers to the accidents of heredity. Should the result of the conference be a renewal in some form of the triple alliance, Europe will no doubt breathe easier for a time, though the pledges of peace will pretty surely be purchased at the sacrifice of some of the smaller nations. The price of Russia's adhesion will, there is little doubt, be the virtual suzerainty of Bulgaria, and, it is by no means likely that Austria's assent to such an arrangement can be purchased at any less price than that of a similar supremacy in Servia. Whether those principalities will bow to the inevitable, and suffer their liberties and aspirations to be set aside without a struggle, is one of the questions which help to complicate the problem. France, if her rulers can spare time from duels and other internal excitements, will, no doubt, strive hard to avert the isolation with which she is threatened, and which may be regarded as the prime object of the conference, but the combinations will probably prove too strong for her. Whether the young Emperor of Germany will be content with the proud consciousness of power as chief arbiter of all the destinies involved, or will stipulate for some more substantial return for his good offices, remains to be discovered. On the whole the world has seldom seen conferences of more importance, judged by the gravity of the issues which are, to all seeming, involved, than those which have taken place between the Emperor of Germany and those of Russia and Austria.

CABINET SECRETS.

The charge made by PARNELL against Mr. CHAMBERLAIN of divulging Cabinet secrets is evidently regarded with a good deal of seriousness in the Imperial parliament. The statesmen of the Old Country have not learned to put the seal of approval so readily upon that kind of thing as we do in British Columbia. It will be remembered a flagrant breach of this kind was exposed in this province a few years ago, the only effect of which was virtually to have the ministers instructed to do the same thing again when they felt like it.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

An arrangement is reported to have been completed in New York between Messrs. Greenway and Martin, of the Manitoba Government, and the Northern Pacific Railway Company, for the operation of the Red River Valley Railway. The delegates have left for home, and a meeting of the legislature will be convened at once to ratify the agreement made. The nature of the agreement is still a secret. A dispatch to the United States press from Winnipeg says the company is to purchase the Red River Valley line, and build 300 miles of branch lines in the province; that the government is to guarantee the bonds of the company to the extent of $6,500 a mile at 6 per cent. for twenty years. The interest has to be paid by the province only in case the road, when operated, does not more than pay running expenses. The Northern Pacific has agreed to establish an immigration bureau here and keep an agent at Castle Garden to see that Manitoba gets a fair share of all immigrants landed there. This explanation of the agreement is very probably guess work, although it possibly indicates the direction the arrangement is likely to take.

The discussion of the fisheries treaty in the United States Senate discloses the fact that some of the objections of the Republican senators to the treaty are very similar to those raised months ago by the TIMES and others. Mr. Dawes, of Massachusetts, who seems to have made a moderate speech in opposition to the treaty, pointed out, what is a fact, that the treaty lacks the important element of finalty. It settles nothing. The arrangements made by Messrs. Chamberlain and Bayard would be more difficult to carry out, and be productive of more trouble, irritation and conflicts than were produced through the enforcement of the old treaty, and Mr. Dawes says he intends to vote against ratification because the treaty "is full of strife, contention and disturbance, and will multiply trouble on all hands."

Mr. Hawke does not seem to have been much daunted by his recent term of imprisonment, for every now and again he returns to the charge, and makes matters lively for the judiciary of New Brunswick. If it be true, as repeatedly stated in the Transcript, that judges on the New Brunswick bench are often intoxicated while in the discharge of their duty, then we say without hesitation that the matter ought to be investigated. The honor of the judiciary is the very essence and foundation of a sound social structure, and if that be wanting, or public faith be destroyed, then many evils follow in the train. The whole subject ought to be brought before both houses of parliament.

A San Francisco despatch of the 26th ultimo, denies that Thomas C. Ewing had been sent to Seattle in the interest of the Southern Pacific Railway Company. It had been stated that his visit would probably result in that company building some branch lines in that section, eventually making West Seattle the northern terminus instead of Portland. Both Mr. Ewing and Colonel Fred. Crocker deny the rumor, the latter stating that the company has never thought of having any railroad interests north of Portland. Mr. Dunsmuir proposed connecting with an extension of the Southern Pacific at a point on the straits opposite this city. The dispatch quoted above probably does not convey the whole truth any more than the rumor which it contradicts.

The Behring Sea question is now before the Supreme Court of the United States for decision in connection with an appeal from an Alaska court on behalf of a United States sealer that was seized and condemned. As the case will raise directly the point as to the jurisdiction of the United States over the waters it is hoped that the decision will pave the way for a settlement of the trouble. The vessel in question was fishing in violation of the alleged monopoly rights, and is, therefore, in the same position as any of the Canadian vessels seized and condemned.

It appears probable that there will be no war in Zululand after all, the British Government, according to the cable advices from London, having countermanded the order for sending reinforcements to the Cape of Good Hope. It is supposed that Dinizulu, the son of Cetewayo, has resolved to submit to the British proclamation annexing the Zulu country to Natal, or that he has been granted a substantial concession in return for his submission.

The Council of the Royal Templars of Temperance, and the W. C. T. U., of Cowansville, Que., have both passed resolutions condemning the issuance of permits for the sale of liquors in the Northwest.

SURREY DYKING SCHEME.

A Meeting at Which There Was a Diversity of Opinion.

On Monday, June 25th, at the Town Hall, Surrey Centre, a meeting of the the land owners interested in the Surrey dyking and land reclamation scheme was held to hear and consider the report of the Committee, appointed at a former meeting. H T Thrift was voted to the chair, R S Yeomans, the promoter of the scheme, being secretary. The minutes of last meeting were read and approved; and Mr W McBride, as chairman of the committee, reported having engaged the services of Mr A Hill, C E, to take soundings of the two rivers at the mouth, and to make plans and profiles, and prepare an estimate of the probable cost of the scheme. As that gentleman was present he was requested to submit estimate, etc. Mr Hill, in addressing the meeting, referred to the very elaborate plans exhibited, and informed his hearers that the scheme could be carried out in a satisfactory manner for $26,000, dykes and floodgates included. After a great deal of discussion pro and con, Mr McBride stated that himself and others had examined the bottom between the point on Blackie's Spit and the coast west of Stinson's Slough, and they were under the impression that a dyke could be constructed across there for a sum not greatly in excess of the amount required to construct the one across the delta of the two rivers. With this fact in its favor, it would protect several thousand acres of land in Delta municipality, and reclaim something like 3,000 acres of rich land that at present is submerged at every tide. This land could be sold and would realize nearly sufficient to cover cost of construction. Mr. John Oliver spoke in favor of the outside scheme, also Messrs. Duncan and Christopher Brown, J. Armstrong, Conn Boothroyd and several others. Mr. Wm. Smith was of the opinion that if the tide was kept out it would be detrimental to the farmers resident in the eastern portions of the flats, for the reason that they would have no facilities for irrigation, which is essential to successful farming in his neighborhood; further, that the soil would dry out to such an extent that fires would do incalculable injury to the land. On these grounds he was opposed to the scheme in any form. Messrs. Murphy, T. Pickard, Anderson, McKenzie and Robinson also expressed their disapproval of the whole scheme. Mr. John Oliver submitted a resolution which was seconded and carried, that the report be referred back to the committee with instructions to consider the advisability of having a survey made of the outside dyke and report at a future meeting. A subscription list was opened to provide the funds required to meet the expense of surveying, &c., after which the meeting adjourned. H.T.T.

Imperial Caesar's Day Revived.

The most popular of all the tented exhibitions will be with us at an early date. It is praiseworthy and meritorious in each of its departments, and will commend itself to everybody as a respectable, reliable and artistic exhibition. The fulsome advertisements of shows in general seldom make good their promises, but with Sells Brothers the rule is exceptional, and, although their announcements read like a tale of the "Arabian Nights," the exhibition always verifies their claims. We speak by the card, for the Sells Brothers' show has been here before, and the impression left by it, both with the press and with the public, justifies our assertions. This year it comes to us with the important augmentation of a Roman hippodrome, presented on an immense elliptic track on which are faithfully reproduced the chariot, standing and Roman races of Caesar's day, in connection with the steeple chases and jockey races of our modern era. Other important addenda to the show are the world-famed trapper, hunter, scout and frontier veteran, Captain A. H. Bogardus, and his four equally remarkable sons. Captain Bogardus has been designated by the Indians as "the man who shoots to kill," and has general recognition as the wizard rifleman of the West, champion wing shot of the world and winner of 1,000 contests. The Chinese Exodus.

Constable Jonas Geer, having conceived the idea that Chinamen from across the boundary line were passing through Whatcom during the still hours of the night, quietly stationed himself at the east end of the 18th street bridge, in the rear of the Reveille office, last Saturday night and awaited developments. About the hour of low twelve, six swarthy Celestials quietly sneaked down the street and attempted to pass the bridge. When midway across, the constable stepped from his hiding place, and with a double action six-shooter gently but determinedly insisted on a halt. An attempt on the part of the Chinamen to retreat was promptly checked by Minn Geer, from the rear end of the bridge, who was likewise "loaded for bar." The Chinamen were thus held prisoners on the bridge until daylight, when they were escorted to the steamer Merwin and taken to Seattle, when the customary deportation orders will be issued and the Chinamen returned to the place from whence they came, only to repeat the attempt to unlawfully enter the United States via the South Fork route.—Whatcom Reveille.

Fashion,

and society, impose many privations upon the female sex, in the way of dress. First it is one freak, and then another, and from the fact, that many of them are unhealthy in the extreme, it is small wonder that many women succumb, and that "female weaknesses" are the too frequent result. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the only positive cure for these complaints in existence, and thousands of women can bear witness to its efficacy. "Favorite Prescription" is a legitimate medicine, carefully compounded by an experienced and skillful physician, and adapted to woman's delicate organization. Sore Eyes

The eyes are always in sympathy with the body, and afford an excellent index of its condition. When the eyes become weak, and the lids inflamed and sore, it is an evidence that the system has become disordered by Scrofula, for which Ayer's Sarsaparilla is the best known remedy.

Scrofula, which produced a painful inflammation in my eyes, caused me much suffering for a number of years. By the advice of a physician I commenced taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla. After using this medicine a short time I was completely

My eyes are now in a splendid condition, and I am as well and strong as ever. —Mrs. William Gage, Concord, N. H.

For a number of years I was troubled with a humor in my eyes, and was unable to obtain any relief until I commenced using Ayer's Sarsaparilla. This medicine has effected a complete cure, and I believe it to be the best of blood purifiers.—C. E. Upton, Nashua, N. H.

From childhood, and until with a few months, I have been afflicted with Weak and Sore Eyes. I have used for these complaints, with beneficial results, Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and consider it a great blood purifier.—Mrs. C. Phillips, Glover, Vt.

I suffered for a year with inflammation in my left eye. Three ulcers formed on the ball, depriving me of sight, and causing great pain. After trying many other remedies, to no purpose, I was finally induced to use Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

By Taking

three bottles of this medicine I have been entirely cured. My sight has been restored, and there is no sign of inflammation, sore, or ulcer in my eye.—Kendal T. Bowen, Sugar Tree Ridge, Ohio.

My daughter, ten years old, was afflicted with Scrofulous Sore Eyes. During the last two years she never saw light of any kind. Physicians of the highest standing exerted their skill, but with no permanent success. On the recommendation of a friend I purchased a bottle of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, which my daughter commenced taking. Before she had used the third bottle her sight was restored. Her cure is complete.—W. E. Sutherland, Evangelist, Shelby City, Ky. 11

WILL O' THE MILL.

BY ROBERT LOUIS STEVENSON.

THE PARSON'S MARJORY.

After some years the old people died, both in one winter, very carefully tended by their adopted son, and very quietly mourned when they were gone. People who had heard of his roving fancies supposed he would hasten to sell the property, and go down the river to push his fortunes. But there was never any sign of such an intention on the part of Will. On the contrary, he had the inn set on a better footing, and hired a couple of servants to assist him in carrying it on; and there he settled down, a kind, talkative, inscrutable young man, six feet three in his stockings, with an iron constitution and a friendly voice. He soon began to take rank in the district as a bit of an oddity. It was not much to be wondered at from the first, for he was always full of notions, and kept calling the plainest common sense in question; but what most raised the report upon him was the odd circumstance of his courtship with the parson's Marjory.

The parson's Marjory was a lass of about 19 when Will would be about 30, well enough looking and much better educated than any other girl in that part of the country, as became her parentage. She held her head very high and had already refused several offers of marriage with a grand air, which had got her hard names among the neighbors. For all that she was a good girl and one that would have made any man well contented.

Will had never seen much of her, for although the church and parsonage were only two miles from his own door he was never known to go there but on Sundays. It chanced, however, that the parsonage fell into disrepair and had to be dismantled, and the parson and his daughter took lodgings for a month or so, on very much reduced terms, at Will's inn. Now, what with the inn and the mill and the old miller's savings, our friend was a man of substance, and besides that, he had a name for good temper and shrewdness, which make a capital portion in marriage, and so it was currently gossiped among their ill wishers that the parson and his daughter had not chosen their temporary lodgings with their eyes shut. Will was about the last man in the world to be cajoled or frightened into marriage. You had only to look into his eyes, limpid and still like pools of water, and yet with a sort of clear light that seemed to come from within, and you would understand at once that here was one who knew his own mind and would stand to it immovably. Marjory herself was no weakling by her looks, with strong, steady eyes and a resolute and quiet bearing. It might be a question whether she was not Will's match in steadfastness, after all, or which of them would rule the roast in marriage. But Marjory had never given it a thought, and accompanied her father with the most unshaken innocence and unconcern.

The season was still so early that Will's customers were few and far between; but the lilacs were already flowering, and the weather was so mild that the party took dinner under the trellis, with the noise of the river in their ears and the woods ringing about them with the songs of birds. Will soon began to take a particular pleasure in these dinners. The parson was rather a dull companion, with a habit of dozing at table; but nothing rude or cruel ever fell from his lips. And as for the parson's daughter, she suited her surroundings with the best grace imaginable; and whatever she said seemed so pat and pretty that Will conceived a great idea of her talents. He could see her face, as she leaned forward, against a background of rising pine woods; her eyes shone peaceably; the light lay around her hair like a kerchief; something that was hardly a smile rippled her pale cheeks, and Will could not contain himself from gazing on her in an agreeable dismay. She looked, even in her quietest moments, so complete in herself, and so quick with life down to her finger tips and the very skirts of her dress, that the remainder of created things became no more than a blot by comparison; and if Will glanced away from her to her surroundings, the trees looked inanimate and senseless, the clouds hung in heaven like dead things, and even the mountain tops were disenchanted. The whole valley could not compare in looks with this one girl.

Will was always observant in the society of his fellow creatures, but his observation became almost painfully eager in the case of Marjory. He listened to all she uttered and read her eyes at the same time for the unspoken commentary. Many kind, simple and sincere speeches found an echo in his heart. He became conscious of a soul beautifully poised upon itself, nothing doubting, nothing desiring, clothed in peace. It was not possible to separate her thoughts from her appearance. The turn of her wrist, the still sound of her voice, the light in her eyes, the lines of her body fell in tune with her grave and gentle words like the accompaniment that sustains and harmonizes the voice of the singer. Her influence was one thing, not to be divided or discussed, only to be felt with gratitude and joy. To Will her presence recalled something of his childhood, and the thought of her took its place in his mind beside that of dawn, of running water and of the earliest violets and lilacs. It is the property of things seen for the first time, or for the first time after long, like the flowers in spring, to reawaken in us the sharp edge of sense and that impression of mystic strangeness which otherwise passes out of life with the coming of years; but the sight of a loved face is what renews a man's character from the fountain upwards.

One day after dinner Will took a stroll among the firs; a grave beatitude possessed him from top to toe, and he kept smiling to himself and the landscape as he went. The river ran between the stepping stones with a pretty wimple; a bird sang loudly in the wood; the hilltops looked immeasurably high, and as he glanced at them from time to time, seemed to contemplate his movements with a beneficent but awful curiosity. His way took him to the eminence which overlooked the plain; and there he sat down upon a stone, and fell into deep and pleasant thought. The plain lay abroad with its cities and silver river; everything was asleep, except a great eddy of birds which kept rising and falling and going round and round in the blue air. He repeated Marjory's name aloud, and the sound of it gratified his ear. He shut his eyes, and her image sprang up before him, quietly luminous and attended with good thoughts. The river might run forever; the birds fly higher and higher till they touched the stars. He saw it was empty bustle after all; for here, without stirring a foot, waiting patiently in his own narrow valley, he also had attained the better sunlight.

The next day Will made a sort of declaration across the dinner table, while the parson was filling his pipe.

"Miss Marjory," he said, "I never knew any one I liked so well as you. I am mostly a cold, unkindly sort of man, not from want of heart, but out of strangeness in my way of thinking; and people seem far away from me. 'Tis as if there were a circle round me, which kept every one out but you. I can hear the others talking and laughing, but you come quite close. Maybe this is disagreeable to you?" he asked.

Marjory made no answer.

"Speak up, girl," said the parson.

"Nay, now," returned Will, "I wouldn't press her, parson. I feel tongue tied myself, who am not used to it, and she's a woman, and little more than a child, when all is said. But for my part, as far as I can understand what people mean by it, I fancy I must be what they call in love. I do not wish to be held as committing myself, for I may be wrong, but that is how I believe things are with me. And if Miss Marjory should feel any otherwise on her part, mayhap she would be so kind as shake her head."

Majory was silent, and gave no sign that she had heard.

"How is that, parson?" asked Will.

"The girl must speak," replied the parson, laying down his pipe. "Here's our neighbor who says he loves you, Madge. Do you love him, ay or no?"

"I think I do," said Marjory, faintly.

"Well, then, that's all that could be wished!" cried Will, heartily. And he took her hand across the table and held it a moment in both of his with great satisfaction.

"You must marry," observed the parson, replacing his pipe in his mouth.

"Is that the right thing to do, think you?" demanded Will.

"It is indispensable," said the parson.

"Very well," replied the wooer.

Two or three days passed away with great delight to Will, although a bystander might scarce have found it out. He continued to take his meals opposite Marjory, and to talk with her and gaze upon her in her father's presence; but he made no attempt to see her alone, nor in any other way changed his conduct towards her from what it had been since the beginning. Perhaps the girl was a little disappointed, and perhaps not unjustly; and yet if it had been enough to be always in the thoughts of another person, and so pervade and alter his whole life, she might have been thoroughly contented. For she was never out of Will's mind for an instant. He sat over the stream, and watched the dust of the eddy, and the poised fish and straining weeds; he wandered out alone into the purple even, with all the blackbirds piping round him in the wood; he rose early in the morning, and saw the sky turn from gray to gold, and the light leap upon the hilltops; and all the while he kept wondering if he had never seen such things before, or how it was that they should look so different now. The sound of his own mill wheel, or of the wind among the trees, confounded and charmed his heart. The most enchanting thoughts presented themselves unbidden in his mind. He was so happy that he could not sleep at night, and so restless that he could hardly sit still out of her company. And yet it seemed as if he avoided her rather than sought her out.

One day, as he was coming home from a ramble, Will found Marjory in the garden picking flowers, and as he came up with her, slackened his pace and continued walking by her side.

"You like flowers?" he said.

"Indeed I love them dearly," she replied. "Do you?"

"Why, no," said he, "not so much. They are a very small affair, when all is done. I can fancy people caring for them greatly, but not doing as you are just now."

"How?" she asked, pausing and looking up at him.

"Plucking them," said he. "They are a deal better off where they are, and look a deal prettier, if you go to that."

"I wish to have them for my own," she answered, "to carry them near my heart, and keep them in my room. They tempt me when they grow here; they seem to say, 'Come and do something with us;' but once I have cut them and put them by, the charm is laid, and I can look at them with quite an easy heart."

"You wish to possess them," replied Will, "in order to think no more about them. It's a bit like killing the goose with the golden eggs. It's a bit like what I wished to do when I was a boy. Because I had a fancy for looking out over the plain I wished to go down there, where I couldn't look out over it any longer. Was not that fine reasoning? Dear, dear, if they only thought of it, all the world would do like me, and you would let your flowers alone, just as I stay up here in the mountains." Suddenly he broke off sharp. "By the Lord!" he cried. And when she asked him what was wrong he turned the question off and walked away into the house with rather a humorous expression of face.

He was silent at table, and after the night had fallen and the stars had come out overhead he walked up and down for hours in the courtyard and garden with an uneven pace. There was still a light in the window of Marjory's room—one little oblong patch of orange in a world of dark blue hills and silver starlight. Will's mind ran a great deal on the window, but his thoughts were not very lover like. "There she is in her room," he thought, "and there were the stars overhead—a blessing upon both!" Both were good influences in his life; both soothed and braced him in his profound contentment with the world. And what more should he desire with either? The fat young man and his councils were so present to his mind that he threw back his head, and, putting his hands before his mouth, shouted aloud to the populous heavens. Whether from the position of his head or the sudden strain of his exertion, he seemed to see a momentary shock among the stars, and a diffusion of frosty light pass from one to another along the sky. At the same instant a corner of the blind was lifted up and lowered again at once. He laughed a loud ho-ho! "One and another!" thought Will. "The stars tremble and the blind goes up. Why, before Heaven, what a great magician I must be! Now, if I were only a fool, should not I be in a pretty way?" And he went off to bed, chuckling to himself: "If I were only a fool!"

The next morning, pretty early, he saw her once more in the garden, and sought her out.

"I have been thinking about getting married," he began abruptly; "and after having turned it all over, I have made up my mind it's not worth while."

She turned upon him for a single moment; but his radiant, kindly appearance would, under the circumstances, have disconcerted an angel, and she looked down again upon the ground in silence. He could see her tremble.

"I hope you don't mind," he went on, a little taken aback. "You ought not. I have turned it all over, and upon my soul there's nothing in it. We should never be one whit nearer than we are just now, and if I am a wise man, nothing like so happy."

"It is unnecessary to go round about with me," she said. "I very well remember that you refused to commit yourself; and now that I see you were mistaken, and in reality never cared for me, I can only feel sad that I have been so far misled."

"I ask your pardon," said Will stoutly; "you do not understand my meaning. As to whether I have ever loved you or not, I must leave that to others. But for one thing, my feeling is not changed; and for another, you may make it your boast that you have made my whole life and character something different from what they were. I mean what I say; no less. I do not think getting married is worth while. I would rather you went on living with your father, so that I could walk over and see you once, or maybe twice a week, as people go to church, and then we should both be all the happier between whiles. That's my notion. But I'll marry you if you will," he added.

"Do you know that you are insulting me?" she broke out.

"Not I, Marjory," said he; "if there is anything in a clear conscience, not I. I offer all my heart's best affections; you can take it or want it, though I suspect it's beyond either your power or mine to change what has once been done, and set me fancy free. I'll marry you, if you like; but I tell you again and again, it's not worth while, and we had best stay friends. Though I am a quiet man, I have noticed a heap of things in my life. Trust in me, and take things as I propose; or, if you don't like that, say the word, and I'll marry you out of hand."

There was a considerable pause, and Will, who began to feel uneasy, began to grow angry in consequence.

"It seems you are too proud to say your mind," he said. "Believe me, that's a pity. A clean shrift makes simple living. Can a man be more downright or honorable to a woman than I have been? I have said my say, and given you your choice. Do you want me to marry you? or will you take my friendship, as I think best? or have you had enough of me for good? Speak out for the dear God's sake! You know your father told you a girl should speak her mind in these affairs."

She seemed to recover herself at that, turned without a word, walked rapidly through the garden and disappeared into the house, leaving Will in some confusion as to the result. He walked up and down the garden, whistling softly to himself. Sometimes he stopped and contemplated the sky and hilltops; sometimes he went down to the tail of the weir and sat there, looking foolishly in the water. All this dubiety and perturbation was so foreign to his nature and the life which he had resolutely chosen for himself that he began to regret Marjory's arrival. "After all," he thought, "I was as happy as a man need be. I could come down here and watch my fishes all day long if I wanted; I was as settled and contented as my old mill."

Marjory came down to dinner looking very trim and quiet; and no sooner were all three at table than she made her father a speech, with her eyes fixed upon her plate, but showing no other sign of embarrassment or distress.

"Father," she began, "Mr. Will and I have been talking things over. We see that we have each made a mistake about our feelings, and he has agreed, at my request, to give up all idea of marriage, and be no more than my very good friend, as in the past. You see there is no shadow of a quarrel, and indeed I hope we shall see a great deal of him in the future, for his visits will always be welcome in our house. Of course, father, you will know best, but perhaps we should do better to leave Mr. Will's house for the present. I believe, after what has passed, we should hardly be agreeable inmates for some days."

Will, who had commanded himself with difficulty from the first, broke out upon this into an inarticulate noise, and raised one hand with an appearance of real dismay, as if he were about to interfere and contradict. But she checked him at once, looking up at him with a swift glance and an angry flush upon her cheek.

"You will perhaps have the good grace," she said, "to let me explain these matters for myself."

Will was put entirely out of countenance by her expression and the ring of her voice. He held his peace, concluding that there were some things about this girl beyond his comprehension, in which he was exactly right.

The poor parson was quite crestfallen. He tried to prove that this was no more than a true lovers' tiff, which would pass off before night; and when he was dislodged from that position, he went on to argue that where there was no quarrel there could be no call for a separation; for the good man liked both his entertainment and his host. It was curious to see how the girl managed them, saying little all the time, and that very quietly, and yet twisting them round her finger and insensibly leading them wherever she would by feminine tact and generalship. It scarcely seemed to have been her doing—it seemed as if things had merely so fallen out—that she and her father took their departure that same afternoon in a farm cart, and went farther down the valley, to wait, until their own house was ready for them, in another hamlet. But Will had been observing closely, and was well aware of her dexterity and resolution. When he found himself alone he had a great many curious matters to turn over in his mind. He was very sad and solitary, to begin with. All the interest had gone out of his life, and he might look up at the stars as long as he pleased, he somehow failed to find support or consolation. And then he was in such a turmoil of spirit about Marjory. He had been puzzled and irritated at her behavior, and yet he could not keep himself from admiring it. He thought he recognized a fine, perverse angel in that still soul which he had never hitherto suspected, and though he saw it was an influence that would fit but ill with his own life of artificial calm, he could not keep himself from ardently desiring to possess it. Like a man who has lived among shadows and now meets the sun, he was both pained and delighted.

As the days went forward he passed from one extreme to another; now pluming himself on the strength of his determination, now despising his timid and silly caution. The former was, perhaps, the true thought of his heart, and represented the regular tenor of the man's reflections; but the latter burst forth from time to time with an unruly violence, and then he would forget all consideration and go up and down his house and garden or walk among the fir woods like one who is beside himself with remorse. To equable, steady minded Will this state of matters was intolerable; and he determined, at whatever cost, to bring it to an end. So one warm summer afternoon he put on his best clothes, took a thorn switch in his hand and set out down the valley by the river. As soon as he had taken his determination he had regained at a bound his customary peace of heart, and he enjoyed the bright weather and the variety of the scene without any admixture of alarm or unpleasant eagerness. It was nearly the same to him how the matter turned out. If she accepted him he would have to marry her this time, which perhaps was all for the best. If she refused him he would have done his utmost, and might follow his own way in the future with an untroubled conscience. He hoped, on the whole, she would refuse him; and then, again, as he saw the brown roof which sheltered her, peeping through some willows at an angle of the stream, he was half inclined to reverse the wish and more than half ashamed of himself for this infirmity of purpose.

Marjory seemed glad to see him and gave him her hand without affectation or delay.

Ran Over at Vancouver.

A mangled human body was found Monday morning lying on the railway track, Vancouver, a little below Hastings saw mill. The remains were identified as those of Robert Melmouth, an old resident of Burrard Inlet. The deceased was a native of Liverpool, England, and came to this province about twelve years ago. An inquest was held yesterday by Coroner Ferris when the evidence showed that the deceased was last seen alive about 1 o'clock on Sunday morning in the City Hotel, apparently sober. The engineer of the only train that went out on Sunday morning testified he did not feel any shock nor did he know a man had been run over until notified by telegraph at North Bend. He was running about eight miles an hour near the point where the accident occurred. The jury returned a verdict of accidental death, and recommended that trains be run through Vancouver at a speed not exceeding four miles an hour.

The Land Guide.

Mr. Wm. Halpenny, for the past four years a land guide for the Provincial Government, has been notified that his services are no longer required. Mr. Halpenny has been the means of locating a great many settlers at Alberni and in other parts of the island, and it is to be regretted that the policy of our government, which has fostered and encouraged land-grabbing to such an extent that all the available agricultural lands have been taken up by speculators, should have compelled them to dispense with his services. We have no doubt they have done so regretfully, for it must be apparent to them that the land-guide is one of the last servants that an unsettled province can do without. In assisting others to acquire land Mr. Halpenny had no time to secure a claim for himself, which goes to prove that he has not been an apt pupil of his employers.

What Kit-wan-cool Means.

A correspondent of the Colonist referring to the village at the head of the Skeena which has received so much prominence of late states that the proper name is Kit-will-cool and not Kit-wan-cool as erroneously used. The Times is informed by Mr. Brown who is well acquainted with that part of the country and versed in the languages of the northern Indians that Kit-wan-cool is correct. It is a Nass word meaning the village of the good land, deriving the name from its situation in the midst of the only clear country in those parts. The explanation of the correspondent was doubtless obtained from a Skeena river Indian whose dialect differs from that of the northern tribes.

Mr. Lovell Interviewed.

Montreal Star: Mr. J. B. Lovell, who is on his way back to Victoria from a trip to England, was seen at the Hall and states that the trouble must have been the fault of whites. The Indians, he said, are selfish and greedy but very peaceful, and thoroughly honest. Even if nothing more serious happens he thought that the injury done to the salmon canning trade, in which the Indians are mostly engaged would be considerable. There would be little chance for the soldiers of ascending the Skeena river as it was full of rapids, compared with which those at Lachine amounted to nothing. The best way would probably be to push forward by means of the Grease trail, so called because near it large numbers of candle fish are caught, the grease of which when pressed out is a valuable trade article amongst the Indians.

REQUIESCAT IN PACE.

Funeral of the late Very Reverend Father John James Jonckau.

At nine o'clock this morning the funeral of the late lamented Very Reverend Father Jonckau took place from the residence of the clergy on Yates street. St. Joseph's Social and Literary Society, and members of the Young Men's Institute, formed in front of the hearse, followed by Bishops Lemmens and Lootens and priests. Following the hearse were the Sisters of St. Ann, with the scholars of the Convent and citizens. On arriving at the pro-Cathedral the remains, enclosed in a beautiful inlaid casket, were laid on a raised dais surrounded with wreaths and crosses of flowers. The church was draped in deep mourning, and numerous candles shed a sombre light over the altar. After chanting prayers for the dead, high requim mass was celebrated by Bishop Lemmens, assisted by Bishop Lootens and Fathers Verhough, of Portland; Deichman, of Port Townsend; Cornelie and Martin, of New Westminster; Demanes, of Seattle; and Fathers Rondeault, Doneckele, Mandart, Brabant, Laterme, Nicolaye, and Verbeke, of the diocese of Vancouver Island. Father Van Nevel was Master of Ceremonies. The Sisters of St. Ann sang the responses and assisted at the mass. At the conclusion of the solemn ceremony Father Brabant delivered the following valedictory: "This is a most solemn and a most painful ceremony. It is painful for us, the priests of the church, to bid a last farewell to a fellow priest who has been to us for so many years a friend and a brother. It is painful for the Sisters and their orphans to take leave of one who for years has been their spiritual guide and guardian. It is painful for all the people to be for the last time in the presence of him who at all times, but especially in the hour of need, was their comforter and father. But God has so decreed. He had given him to us and He has taken him. Blessed be His holy name. As for us, beloved brethren, let us not be dejected and sad as those who have no hope for we know that the saintly life of the deceased is a prestige of a happy resurrection. As one of his fellow students and a friend of his for more than 23 years, I have been selected to give an outline of his life and sacerdotal career. The Very Reverend John James Jonckau was born forty-eight years ago in a small village of Belgium in the Province of Leige. He lost his parents at a tender age. He knew what it is never to hear the voice of a tender mother and of a beloved father, and this will explain his tender solicitude for the orphans. Many will remember his sweet smile and pleasant intercourse with them and will, I am sure, pray most devotedly for their father and benefactor. Shortly after the death of his parents he went to Antwerp and was adopted by a widowed aunt. Here another trial awaited him, for within a short time he lost an only sister and now he was left in the world without parents, without brother or sister. But his aunt was a pious christian lady and proved a good mother. She instilled into his mind those principles of piety and humility which we have all admired and which he has left behind him as a lasting legacy for our imitation. Might our Catholic parents imitate the pious lady in the education of their children and the day would come when they would be proud of their offspring, and that instead of shedding tears over their misdeeds they would be to them a comfort and joy in their old age. Moreover Father Jonckau was educated for a commercial career and in order to render him more fit he was sent to Germany that he might acquire a thorough knowledge of the German language, now so universally spoken. After residing for two years in Germany he went back to Antwerp and went as an apprentice in one of the principal business houses in that large city. His superior noticing his great honesty and business tact sent him on a mission to the island of Jamaica. It was on his way back home that was developed in his mind the desire of giving up all for Christ and becoming one of His followers in the ranks of the priesthood. The announcement astounded everyone; but his mind was made up and the promises of a bright future and the prospects of a prosperous career in the world could not induce him to abandon his determination. Next we find him in the small seminary of Michlin an exemplary and most bright student. He graduated with the greatest honors, and although the most envious positions in the sacerdotal ranks were open for him in his native land, he preferred to enter the American College at Louvain and prepare himself for the poorest mission in America. We have seen him there the most retiring and unassuming little man that he was ever afterwards. He was our fellow-student, but we looked upon him as our model and our counsellor, and the intimate relations which existed between him and his superiors have been broken only by his death. And now, beloved brethren, I appeal to you as witnesses of his exemplary life to say who here present, either priest or layman, could raise his hand and make charges against him. Twenty-one years he has spent amongst us and in all those years his conduct has been such that not one of us can raise his voice against him. We have seen him amongst your children, sacrificing his life for education. He was a boy amongst the boys but a clever teacher in the school room, and his authority was respected. No wonder that those boys now grown to be men would always meet him with a smile, for when they met him they met one who had been and still was their best friend. We have seen him for years at an early hour of the day, through cold and rain, leave his comfortable room and when the streets were wet and deserted he would walk over to St. Ann's Convent and there offered the sacrifice of the Mass for the people. We, his fellow priests, have seen him, the people have not. We have seen him, I say, during the dreary winter months travel along the backwoods of Esquimalt before daylight that he might say Mass in the Indian village and return before school hours. He was not one of those who look down with contempt upon the poor natives of the soil, and none were too poor or considered unworthy of being included in his spiritual ministration. We know that it is pleasant and comfortable to attend to the spiritual wants of the rich; but before all he was a Catholic priest, and he always remembered that to them it was said by the Master 'Go and teach all nations.' Not only the rich and wealthy—the civilized and enlightened—but all nations, the poor as well as the affluent. And you, beloved brethren, who have had in your families sick or infirm, you remember his welcome and timely visits, and when he left your house you have felt that he was an angel of charity. How edifying his intercourse was with your sick, and if a friend in need is a friend, indeed then you will acknowledge that Father Jonckau has been one of the best friends you have ever had. When small-pox was raging in this city years ago, he used to visit the afflicted ones offering the consolation of a Christian death. He considered not the danger to which he was exposing himself, but attended at the bedside of his dying people ministering to their wants, consoling them and forgiving them their sins. Father Jonckau was a martyr of charity and we may well attribute his untimely death to his great love for education of youth and his zeal for the salvation of his fellow-men. The people of Esquimalt, of Sooke and Metchosin will miss him for many a day to come. He has been their friend as he has been our own. He erected there a beautiful church, but better than that he succeeded in building up a beautiful spiritual building by instilling into the minds of his people a sense of their duty as Catholics—a credit to him and a credit to the diocese. But, alas, his visits are at an end. No longer shall you receive his visits, people of Esquimalt, Metchosin, and Sooke. He has finished his career. You will never meet him again in your families or in the streets with his pleasant smile. You will not see him rushing through the streets on his errands of charity, a picture of humility and kindness. He lies dead before us; let us pray for the repose of his soul."

Father Brabant was much affected during the delivery of the sermon over his dead fellow-student, whilst his hearers were moved to tears. The services were shortly afterwards brought to a close and the the body was placed in the vault beneath the church. The pall-bearers were: Hon. A. E B. Davie, S. Perry Mills, E. A. McQuade, Jacob Sehl, C. Lombard, N. Portman, Michael McTiernan, H. Sullivan, Alex. McDonald, M. Bantley, D. F. Fee, Jr., President of St. Joseph's Society, and Thomas Deasy, President of the Young Men's Institute.

Members of St. Joseph's Society and Young Men's Institute attended in their regalia and a large concourse of citizens paid their last tribute to the departed priest. The pro-Cathedral was filled with friends of the deceased who was loved and revered by all with whom he came in contact. May his soul rest in peace.

OUR TOWN MAJOR.

A Real Estate Man—The Loan By-Laws—City Council.

He hailed from the "city of stumps." He looked stumped all over, from the sheen of his plug to the real estate understandings. A faint endeavor to keep up the croak of the "earth is mine," "opera houses," and the "filling up of False Creek," still showed the way in which the wind blew. He was the personification of Cordova street on a very humble and reduced scale. It's all very well to say blow, but where's the wind to come from? The blow was there lacking the wind; the latter article seemed wanting. The plug failed to impress the natives here. It's a misfit anyway—looks very Johnson street like—as if hired for the occasion. As an imposing braddress, to sell lots, whether they be water lots in the middle of the Inlet, or wood lots in the depths of the impenetrable forest, it's a failure, and doesn't seem to in any way represent a $75,000 opera house.

The city must certainly be on the advance and "Moss-backs" on the decline. Just fancy there were only 153 out of 400 against the library, and 166 against the sewers. Well, with a little for the sewers, a little for the water works and a handsome provision for the library, we ought to get along for a while. With food for the mind, health for the body, we should improve considerably. It now remains for the city council to do their part and shew the people by their actions that the old boy is not as black as he is painted. Honesty of purpose once established in the public mind, then the onward march towards improvement will be irresistable. Very properly the paltry $13,000 for Beacon Hill was voted down. The money would simply have been thrown away. The concern is too big to be treated so shabbily. As for the City Hall and James Bay appropriation it would have been throwing good money after bad. The City Hall is scarcely a building of civic grandeur to which Victoria can point with pride. As for James Bay, the bridge is sufficient to disgust anyone, and the proposed remedy as bad as the disease. In regard to the fire department, well, things at present are too slow to burn—they simply smoulder—consequently there is no fear of conflagration. It would be a hard job to set a "mossback" on fire. Let us hope that with a more healthful state of the mind and body given to our community by the library, the sewers and the improved water supply, there will be no occasion to enlarge Ross Bay for many a year. So there can be no regret on this head. Let your dead bury their dead; look after the living and while here below see to it, ye city fathers, that we have just as beautiful and as healthy a spot while living as there is provided for us when dead.

You ambitious ones of the Council of '88, show your hands now. Should you desire to seek the suffrages of your fellow-citizens for another term. A good deal can be done with the moiety granted you by the people. See that it is properly expended. Don't let Langley St. run away with the largest share of it; pickings there must be, but see to it that they are in due proportion, say from 3 to 5 per cent., or at most 8 per ct. Anything over would make ill-natured people say you were stealing the people's money. If there are to be any injunctions about the sewers begin at once to force them on; they will afford us something to talk about during these dull times, and give our leading journals a little original matter to fill up with. Re-print of old, stale matter makes things appear more inane and insipid than they are. So lose no time and dish us up an injunction, a good fat one, well seasoned to keep down the smell. It ought to be dished up at the inaugural banquet in the new Palace of Justice, Bastion Square.

The Major hopes that the Council, elated by the chance given them by the city of handling a little more of the people's money, will appropriate a few dollars towards the Agricultural Society. Only just a few, to show that there's no ill-feeling.

The spirits are mad. "Oh!" said one last evening, "they will never do any good with the money now they've got it. The people will never get any benefit out of it, not that I can see. The thing was all cut and dried. Well, the people have only given them fellows a rod to whip their own back with; by the time the injunctions come on and other little matters, there won't be much left to build a sewer down Johnson street or anywhere else." The spirit was evidently riled, for he never as much as said good evening to

A Vancouver Problem.

Although the pipe which is to bring the water from the other side of the Inlet has not yet been laid across the Narrows the company is laying the pipes along the streets in the full confidence that part of the work will be successfully accomplished. It is not however unattended with difficulties, if not a slight mixture of uncertainty. The crossing of the Narrows with its strong tide, deep water, rocky, clean swept bottom, is no common undertaking, and until the work is successfully accomplished will cause some misgivings in the public mind, if not in the minds of those more immediately connected with the work. It is probably as well that this way of bringing water to the city should be thoroughly tested. The laying of the pipe is only the first part of the test; their adaption and durability are also of importance. The time will come and probably before a great while, when the city will furnish its own water supply, and it will be of some advantage to have a question of this kind finally settled, and all doubts removed as to its practicability.—Vancouver Herald.
